Steve Critchley, a Principal of the Versatility Group, is currently a practicing mediator with international experience. In 1994, during the Bosnian war, Steve witnessed human conflict at its worst. His experiences included negotiating with armed belligerents and establishing small local areas of trust and co-operation. Steve witnessed first hand that people can work together to achieve realistic and positive results. Steve's extensive experience includes multi-party mediations and one-to-one negotiations. He has worked with international companies in the energy sector, special interest groups, and not-for-profit organizations.
